KATHMANDU, JUNE 2016

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Nepal Communitere announces the arrival of the inaugural Kathmandu Mini Maker Faire to celebrate innovation, technology and education in Nepal.

Nepal Communitere, in partnership with the U.S. Embassy Nepal and World Vision's Nepal Innovation Lab, is organizing the first Kathmandu Mini Maker Faire (KMMF) on September 24-25, 2016. The KMMF will bring together innovators from Nepal and abroad, and will highlight the kind of innovation in Nepal that addressed community needs after the 2015 earthquake. The KMMF will showcase opportunities to leverage the Maker and DIY (Do-it- Yourself) movement, with a unique focus on humanitarian and other needs-based innovation, to rebuild Nepal.

The Kathmandu Mini Maker Faire will convene entrepreneurs, makers, business people, as well as members of international and national nongovernmental organizations and government agencies. The event will celebrate the Maker Movement – a movement that brings together tech innovators, tinkerers, and artisans – and showcase an array of new technologies and innovative projects that promote STEAM (Science, Technology, Engineering, Art, and Math) learning.

Events and exhibits will include workshops on small, low-cost computers such as Raspberry Pi and Arduino, a virtual reality booth, drone flying, 3D printing workshops, and traditional crafting.

Communitere is an innovative non-governmental non-profit organization. The U.S. Embassy in Nepal was established in 1951. The Nepal Innovation Lab, established as part of World Vision's Nepal Earthquake Response, is supporting the research and development of new products, technologies, and systems to improve humanitarian response and community resilience.

Makers innovating in humanitarian technology are encouraged to apply as a speaker / exhibitor on our Call for Makers: International Makers Form and Nepali Makers Form.

The Kathmandu Mini Maker Faire is independently organized and operated under license from Maker Media, Inc.
